1. The preliminary negotiations leading up to the formation of the eastern German government on 7 October 1949 were as follows: Ambassador V.S. Semenov and K.I. Koval, the political and economic advisers, respectively, to General Chuikov, returned from Moscow about 23 September. On the evening of 25 September a meeting of the SED Politburo was held at Wilhelm Pieck's house, after which Semenov visited Pieck. On the afternoon of 30 September, Pieck and Walter Ulbricht made arrangements to clear the building of the former Prussian Landtag of DWK offices, the move to be completed by 30 October. During the evening of 30 September, Ambassador Semenov held a conference with leaders of the bourgeois parties. On the following morning all available vehicles of the DWK were dispatched to factories at various places in the Russian Zone to requisition office furniture and carpets.
2. Hans-Paul Gantner-Gilman (CDU), chief of the Hauptverwaltung Trade and Supply in the DWK, is said to have known as early as 1 October the approximate composition of the various ministries. On the second the "spontaneous" demands for a German government began to be made by factory groups; Heinrich Rau spoke on 2 October at a tractor factory at Brandenburg a. d. Havel. The Politburo met on the evening of 2 October, and again on 3 October; on 4 October the details of the coming government were announced to a meeting of the SED Vorstand. This was followed by a meeting of the "Democratic Bloc" on 5 October.
3. It is now reported that Pieck will be the president of the new government, and that in that capacity he will hold his first formal reception on 12 October in Schloss Hiederschnhausen. The announcement that elections will be held in the middle of October 1950 is to be made officially on 11 October 1949. Source says it is generally agreed that no peace treaty with the U.S.S.R. will be concluded in the near future.
4. The cabinet to be announced on 12 October will be composed about as follows:*

5. It is still being debated whether there should be an independent Personnel Department; the bourgeois parties want a separate personnel section in each ministry. Arthur Pieck (SED), the son of Wilhelm Pieck, who has been chief of personnel for the DMK until recently, will be in his father's office.

6. Josef Orlopp (SED) will be head of the Deutsche Aussenhandelsgesellschaft.

* Comment: This list appears more likely to be correct than the one given in since it includes members of other parties than the SED, whose appointment would be considered desirable to preserve the appearance of an all-party front.
